TWENTIETH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

Seen any “undeserving poor” lately?

In George Bernard Shaw’s play Pygmalion, ne’er-do-well Alfred P. Doolittle laments, “It’s always the same story: ‘You’re undeserving; so you can’t have it.’ But my needs is as great as the most deserving widow’s that ever got money out of six different charities in one week for the death of the same husband. I don’t need less than a deserving man: I need more.” Compassion is not compassion if it has to be “deserved.” A Christian owes mercy and leaves the judgment to God. Is there a person, ethnic group, or race you think undeserving? Then you’re not thinking like Jesus.

TODAY’S READINGS: Jeremiah 38:4-6, 8-10; Hebrews 12:1-4; Luke 12:49-53 (120). “Persevere in running the race, while keeping your eyes fixed on Jesus.”

MONDAY, AUGUST 15

SOLEMNITY OF THE ASSUMPTION OF THE BLESSED VIRGIN MARY
Crowned in heaven, her feet firmly on earth

As with the feast of the Lord’s Ascension, Mary being taken to heaven evokes the image of heaven being up. But Mary’s glory derives from her life on earth: her faith, her trust in God even when confused, her love for her son, her compassion for embarrassed wedding hosts, the horror of seeing her son crucified. Mary had her feet firmly on the good earth, where we live. When we “Hail” her, she responds, “Do whatever my son tells you,” and when we do so, to paraphrase her son’s Sermon on the Mount, our “reward in heaven will be great.”

TODAY’S READINGS: Vigil: 1 Chronicles 15:3-4, 15-16; 16:1-2; 1 Corinthians 15:54b-57; Luke 11:27-28 (621); Day: Revelation 11:19a; 12:1-6a, 10ab; 1 Corinthians 15:20-27; Luke 1:39-56 (622). “Now have salvation and power come, and the kingdom of our God and the authority of his Anointed One.”

TUESDAY, AUGUST 16 MEMORIAL OF STEPHEN OF HUNGARY

God works through imperfect vessels

Stephen of Hungary may be a saint, but he was no angel. He was good to the church, it is true, firmly establishing the faith in modern-day Hungary a millennium ago. However, the age was one of warfare, and Stephen engaged in his fair share of it. Once he had eliminated his competition, he did usher in an era of relative peace, and Hungary became a preferred route for pilgrims traveling between Europe and the Holy Land. Each age has its accomplishments—and its sins.

Do the best you can to leave a legacy of good works.

TODAY’S READINGS: Ezekiel 28:1-10; Matthew 19:23-30 (420). “It is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle than for one who is rich to enter the kingdom of God.”

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 17

Where charity ends

“Charity begins at home.” Few of us doubt the wisdom and the primary duty of taking care of our families, neighborhoods, and communities. But for many, the obligation of charity can often appear to end at home as well. We may be reluctant to put our funds at the disposal of another needy parish, or to assist someone else’s family with our limited resources. But what if we took seriously the human family as genuine sisters and brothers? When home and family are expansive notions, then charity at home goes a long, long way.

TODAY’S READINGS: Ezekiel 34:1-11; Matthew 20:1-16 (421). “Woe to the shepherds of Israel who have been pasturing themselves! Should not shepherds, rather, pasture sheep?”

THURSDAY, AUGUST 18

For the love of money

It doesn’t take a spiritual genius to know that, as the Beatles put it, “money can’t buy me love.” Pope Francis uses his most moving appeals to divert a consumer-obsessed world from its vain pursuits: “Do not fall into the terrible trap of thinking that life depends on money and that, in comparison with money, anything else is devoid of value or dignity. This is nothing but an illusion! We cannot take money with us into the life beyond. Money does not bring us happiness.” Do your choices today prove that you want the kind of things that money just can’t buy?

TODAY’S READINGS: Ezekiel 36:23-28; Matthew 22:1-14 (422). “I will give you a new heart and place a new spirit within you.”

FRIDAY, AUGUST 19 MEMORIAL OF JOHN EUDES, PRIEST

Embarrassed into holiness

John Eudes was drawn to many kinds of service: some conventional, such as improving seminary education, and some less so, such as easing the dire needs of prostitutes. But he needed a little prodding. Madeleine Lamy, who had cared for several such women, one day challenged him to address the problem. “Where are you off to now, John? To some church, I suppose, where you’ll gaze at the images and think yourself pious. And all the time what is really wanted of you is a decent house for these poor creatures.” Red-faced but inspired, he began a religious community to meet those needs. Sometimes we have to be embarrassed into holiness!

TODAY’S READINGS: Ezekiel 37:1-14; Matthew 22:34-40 (423). “You shall love your neighbor as yourself.”

SATURDAY, AUGUST 20

MEMORIAL OF BERNARD, ABBOT, DOCTOR OF THE CHURCH
Creation is our teacher

Saint Bernard once said, “What I know of the divine sciences and the Holy Scriptures, I have learned in woods and fields.” A year ago, the Catholic Church announced that it would join the Orthodox Church on September 1 each year for World Day of Prayer for the Care of Creation, a day to contemplate God in the beauty of creation. On this Saturday in August, make some time to contemplate God’s creation and be with God in nature.

TODAY’S READINGS: Ezekiel 43:1-7a; Matthew 23:1-12 (424). “The greatest among you must be your servant.”

Invest just five minutes a day, and your faith will deepen and grow—a day at a time.

THOREAU SOCIETY BICENTENNIAL 2016-2017

Henry David Thoreau, American author, philosopher, and naturalist will celebrate the 200th anniversary of his birth July 12, 2017. No one can deny his contributions to the world in the areas of literature, the environment, and social justice. Therefore, it is fitting to recognize his legacy and the indelible mark he made.

St. Benedict Catholic School in Garfield Heights, Ohio will celebrate the Thoreau Bicentennial by “Sauntering the Year with Henry David Thoreau.” Throughout the 2016-2017 academic year, each month will be dedicated to a specific activity focusing on Henry David Thoreau. Students will observe nature closely, write descriptive essays, journal, sketch, and walk. They will learn about Thoreau’s importance to the environment and conservation, as well as his role as an abolitionist and his influence on Ghandi and Martin Luther King.

We will commence our celebration with “meeting” Henry David Thoreau and sauntering a mile with him outdoors. Afterwards, students will partake in a watermelon party. The concluding event of the year will be a formal program with dramatic reading, art work and student writing display, a play, readings from Thoreau’s journal and other works, and a slide show with flute music. The community at large will be invited to this closing program.

Thoreau Society Ambassador for the Bicentennial of Henry David Thoreau’s birth in 2017, Donna Marie Przybojewski, junior high Language Arts teacher at St. Benedict Catholic School as well as a parishioner of Mother of Sorrows, designed a school year celebration of this American author. Lessons will be implemented and will cross the curriculum during the school year. She created a discussion starter coloring book to introduce young minds to Thoreau. This coloring book was created as a springboard for primary teachers to educate children about Henry David Thoreau in a very simple way.

Anyone wishing to support Donna Marie with her Bicentennial efforts may purchase the discussion coloring book at www.shopatwaldenpond.org. Go to Children’s Corner—children’s books—coloring books.
